Introducing CMC's California Workplace Violence Prevention Compliance Solutions

On September 30, 2023, California Governor Newsom signed SB 553 – a sweeping new law addressing Workplace Violence Prevention in virtually all California workplaces. California employers (unless they fall under one of the limited exemptions) will be required by July 1, 2024, to:

- Establish, implement, and maintain an effective workplace violence prevention plan
- Perform a workplace violence-specific hazard assessment of your workplace and operations
- Conduct an investigation of every incident of workplace violence (broadly defined)
- Generate investigation reports of every incident of workplace violence
- Create and maintain Violent Incident Logs
- Provide annual interactive employee and supervisor training
- Maintain (and produce upon request) program-related records for various periods

These requirements may seem straightforward; however, compliance pitfalls await employers who fail to delve into them deeply, and responses to workplace violence incidents may expose employers to legal claims in other areas of the law. To that end, Conn Maciel Carey's California Practice has created several options to assist employers with compliance.

If you are interested in this option, we can provide you with a questionnaire that will help us start the process of customizing your plan.

If you would like to work off your own draft policy, we are also well-positioned to perform a gap assessment of that (and the related policies). Of course, we are also ready and available to provide other ad hoc services related to workplace violence prevention; e.g., any of the individual components of the turnkey program described above at our usual hourly rates.
